FOR RURAL BETTERMENT.

The Woman's Club of Bryan, composed of some fifty or sixty of the city's brightest and brainiest women, has introduced a new feature in its prescribed course of study and work for this club year, that is indeed highly commendable and gives promise of results that will redound to the lasting good of the entire community.

In the year's work they have set apart four days which they have designated as "open meetings" and which will be devoted to the study of some branch of the great economic and general welfare questions that are now engaging the earnest thought of our ablest men and women throughout the country. The first of these open meetings will be held on the afternoon of Wednesday, November 2, at Carnegie Library, and has been designated as "Rural Welfare Day." At this meeting methods will be discussed tending to promote the general uplift of rural communities. When the roll of the club is called the members will answer with some suggestion or plan furthering this idea of general helpfulness, and the meeting will conclude with an address from Colonel Clarence Ousley along the same lines. In fact, the work in which the members of the Woman's Club hope to aid in furthering is in direct line with the work of the extension department of the A. & M. College, of which Colonel Ousley is the official head. He is beyond question the leader in Texas in this advanced thought, this new awakening to our opportunities and our possibilities, and his address on this occasion should be heard by every woman in Brazos County who can possibly be present.

And right here The Eagle will state this is the reason they have designated it an "open meeting," signifying that every lady in the county is most cordially invited to be present. Not only invited, but urged to be present. The object of these meetings is not one-sided, but mutual. The club ladies believe the ladies from the country will be benefited by the suggestions offered, and they feel assured they will be helped themselves by having their sisters from the country with them.

Mutual helpfulness is the watchword, and it is one of the most hopeful signs of the century. The doctrine and the spirit of "My Brother's Keeper" is abroad in this land, and out of it will grow a universal brotherhood and a universal sisterhood that will work out the redemption of the people and teach them the truth, and the truth shall indeed make them free.

AN EDITOR'S GARDENER.

To our old friend Blackshear, editor of the Navasota Examiner, it gives us pleasure to state, we now have plenty of turnip greens, mustard greens, bush beans, pole beans, butter beans, okra and squash. Take a day off, Ed. and come up and enjoy a good old vegetable dinner with us.—Bryan Eagle.

You must be doing pretty well in the newspaper business to be able to employ a professional and high-priced gardener. Only a very capable vegetable grower could have any such fall crops of truck as you list above, and therefore we know that you keep a salaried man to make a garden for you. But why should you permit a high-priced employe to spend valuable time in raising okra? Okra isn't a garden vegetable. Okra is more of a medicinal herb, like slippery elm bark, and to attempt to eat it is to put oneself on an alimentary level with the all-embracing goitrous bilious. If State Press were keeping a gardener at fifty or sixty dollars a month and board, and the gardener used any of our ground and time for growing okra, there would be a vacancy on our domestic staff in short order. Land is tolerably cheap, even in Texas, where all the best land is, but no land is cheap enough to justify an okra crop.—State Press.

Man, do you know how much land it takes to grow okra enough for a small family? Just enough for three stalks to grow on. That many stalks will do the business. A plot of ground we judge about the size of Jim Lowry's or Lee Rountree's hat. Now when it comes to making a regular dish of the stuff, like State Press, we are not in it, but you know just a whang of it is fine-flavoring for the soup. Just like mint. Now whoever saw anybody who would go out to the bed in the left hand corner of the garden and chew the stuff? Nobody. And yet it has its uses as an ingredient for certain concoctions that fill a "long felt want" and for which there is no substitute. Take fried roasting ears, for instance. Did you ever try any with a few thin slices of bacon cooked with them? Gives them the finest flavor in the world. Same way with okra. We have no honing, as George Bailey would say, for it at all, but dingbusted if you can deny its fine flavoring qualities. Now as to that paid gardener, we deny the charges all and singular. We do the work ourselves morning and evening as an offset to the daily curl-up on the tripod. If you do not believe it we can prove an alibi.

There is more or less stir in oil circles. Parties have been here two or three times lately on a tour of inspection and our tip is to the effect that sufficient evidence exists for further and more determined investigation. And the field is not over four miles from the city. We have always maintained that oil in paying quantities could be found in Grimes County at several places, if only the right sort of effort is made to unearth it. We hope the parties strike it and strike it rich.—Navasota Examiner.

Proof of the pudding is chewing the bag. You can never tell until you try. Go after it, and here's hoping you get oil or gas, preferably gas, because Bryan could then share in the benefits of your great find.

There is considerable talk about land for the "landless man" and how he may get it. There is but one way. Let him pick out his land, arrange the terms upon which he can buy it and then hit the ball early and late, live at home and live economically until the last dollar is paid. That's the route traveled by all who went before him and that's the route he must travel. These trot-line farmers who spend half their time on the streams will never own their own homes. Neither will the "business" farmer who is just compelled to come to town three days out of every week. Owning a farm is just like owning anything else. It comes through hard work and economy.

The ladies of St. Andrew's Guild are preparing to give their annual "Pure Food Show" in the building next door to the postoffice. The days for the show are Thursday, Friday and Saturday, October 23, 24 and 25, and it gives promise of eclipsing any previous effort. The ladies of the guild are bundles of energy and the efforts they are putting forth are worthy the greatest success, for which they have the very best wishes of The Eagle.

The nose diamond is already popular in San Francisco. It is something we will all have to face.—Waco Times-Herald.

Nearly all the noses in this country have proven themselves to be diamonds or they would have been gone long ago, having been held to the grindstone for so long.

The Greenville Banner says the insect-eating birds are the farmers' crop guards. Our idea is the farmers in this section should open a lot of recruiting stations.

If we fall on that canning factory we will miss another opportunity in the scheme of making every edge cut.

Fight the boll weevil now if you expect or hope to make a crop next year.

The light daily receipts show beyond question the cotton crop is nearly all in.

AN INVITATION

To the Women of Bryan and Brazos County.

You are cordially invited to attend the open meeting of the Bryan Woman's Club, designated as Rural Welfare Day, on Wednesday, November 2, 3 p. m., at Carnegie Hall. Subjects of importance to women and their work will make up the program of the occasion, and every woman who is interested in her home and her children is urged to be present. The ladies of the rural communities are especially invited. Come; a cordial invitation awaits you.

HIGH DEFEATED STARS.

Bryan School Boys Proved They Have Excellent Football Machine.

In a well played game of football yesterday the Bryan high school team outplayed and defeated the Bryan Stars on the Bryan Baptist Academy grounds by a score of 13 to 7. The game was hard fought throughout, but the high school had the edge on their opponents in almost every department of the game. Their offensive work was a surprise to all and their fast backfield was hard for the Stars to stop. They were also good on defense and held the Stars in check during the greater part of the game. The first touchdown was made by the Stars when Harris recovered a fumble and ran almost the entire length of the field for a touchdown. He then kicked goal.

The high school scored shortly afterward on one or two successful forward passes and line plunges and a pass to Cole, who was almost on the Stars' goal line. Harrison kicked goal, tying the score. Their second score came in the last quarter, when by a fake pass Osborne circled right end for about 45 yards and a touchdown. Harrison failed to kick goal. The game ended with the ball seenaving back and forth.

The Stars seemed to be far below the standard set by them in the game with Allen Academy, and except for occasional flashes their playing was mediocre and slow.

For the high school the entire team was on the job, but the work of the backfield deserves especial mention. Osborne proved himself one of the best line plungers and backs who ever attended the high school and his work at carrying the ball was mainly responsible for his team's victory.

The high school is scheduled to play the Calvert high school in Calvert Friday afternoon. They expect a pretty hard game, but are confident of victory.

GOVERNOR AIDS GALVESTON TRUCKERS

Sum Was Secured From Red Cross to Aid Families Stricken in August Storm.

Galveston, Tex., Oct. 16.—A check in the sum of $500 from Hon. James E. Ferguson, Governor of Texas, has just been received by J. H. Black, president of the Galveston Island Truck Growers' Association, and the storm relief fund raised for the benefit of farmers down the island has thus been augmented.

The $500 was sent by Governor Ferguson after Mr. Black had filed with the chief executive a statement representing conditions down the island. The check was made out payable to three persons, namely, Mr. Black and County Commissioners James E. Boddeker and John Egert. One hundred dollars of the total was turned over Saturday by Mr. Black, the latter said, to Commissioner Boddeker for use in relieving cases of immediate need at Bolivar, in view of the fact that some time ago Mr. Boddeker turned over for distribution among island farmers some of the damaged dry goods from the steamer El Sud.

Governor Ferguson wrote, in his letter dated October 21, which accompanied the check, that he had obtained the money from the Red Cross. Mr. Black stated Monday morning that the island farmers' relief fund, through subscriptions obtained by solicitations of the committee headed by himself, now totals $855, including the sum just received from the Governor. This money will be pro rated, the chairman said, along with additional funds provided by the central relief committee as per agreement with that committee, and it is stated that the help will be of a fairly substantial nature. Just when the pro rating will be done remains for the central committee to say, according to Mr. Black. The latter said that shelter is now the greatest need of some of the farmers. "They can get credit for seed and fertilizer and donations of manure for fertilizer from several stables in the city," he added.

ALLEN TO PLAY BRENNHAM.

The Allen Academy football team is scheduled to play the fast Brenham high school team in this city next Friday afternoon on the Allen Academy grounds. This should be one of the best games of the season, as the Brenham team this year is showing up as one of the best high school teams in the State and have to their credit a defeat of the Deaf and Dumb Institute team by a score of 7 to 0 last week. The team this year is coached by Dudley Everett, the brilliant football man who starred in the A. & M. backfield last year, and he is reported to have developed a fast little football machine. The Allen Academy team is going at top speed and their defeat Saturday will serve to give the coaches pointers on the weaknesses of the players.
